WRITING SUPERVISOR ANSWERS BEAT FIVER

W. W. Whitaker Says Constituent's Letter Brimful of Ignorance—Exercises Prerogative in Fixing Salaries. Predicts Beat Fiver Would Accept "Insulting" Salary Offered to Demonstrators. Shows How to Do without Agents in His Opinion.

Editor Sentinel:

After reading the effusion of my distinguished constituent who hides himself under the nom-de-plume, "Beat Fiver," I can, at least, agree with him that there is a lot of ignorance in the air, even if I fail to agree with him in other ways. The air, certainly, has no monopoly on ignorance, for his letter is brimming full of it.

It is of course ridiculous and absurd to associate the advent of hog-cholera, anthrax and boll-weevils with the coming of the agents.

As to my trying always to push the agents down, as my accuser crudely phrases it, I have not, officially done so; I have only helped to exercise a function which the law requires of the board, that of fixing the salary. If it is not the board's duty to fix the salary, then may I ask my astute friend whose duty it is? Perhaps he will give us the benefit of his wisdom on this point.

My interpretation of the horse story, as applied to the demonstration situation is this; the horse, for the past ten or fifteen years, had access to a splendid clover pasture, to a trough filled with sweet feed, oats, bran, cotton seed meal and other things, pleasing to the taste of a fastidious animal, to a rack filled with peagreen alfalfa hay and to a purring brook whose crystal-like waters slaked his perennial thirst; the horse fell in the hands of another man; this man provided the horse with ten ears of corn three times a day, some peavine hay at night and the artesian well to drink from; the horse determined to be a martyr for he reasoned that if this man could show that a horse could live on plain fare, men in other counties would reduce the fare of their horses; and, so, the horse died in the midst, if you please, of plenty.

As to the salary offered by the board being an "insult," I hazard the assertion that 95 per cent of those most vociferous in their denunciation of the board's action would welcome such an "insult." If I were disposed to make invidious comparisons, which I am not, I would predict that my delightful and ingenious friend, "Beat Fiver," would leave his plow in the middle of the row and let the mule get back the best way he could to the landlord's barn if he were offered this insulting and humiliating salary of $2200.00 per year.

Until we get agents, my friend, we can accomplish the things about which you grieve and moan in the following manner: (1) Look back at the files of The Sentinel for the period antedating the advent of the agents, and consult some of the older citizens, and you may learn how to have a fair. (2) Regarding pruning, get out your knife and prune your own trees, just as did your father before you. He didn't wait for an agent, and, if you just must have the truth, he had better fruit than you have. (3) If you know not how to can, ask mamma or grandma, or one of the many young ladies who for fifteen years have learned from the agents. (4) In answer to the question about terracing, I will have to answer, "God only knows," for we have had no help, to my knowledge, in this section. (5) This is no paltry advertisement for Messrs. L. T. Hayden and Fulton McRee of Holcomb and John B. Perry, of Grenada, but each of these gentlemen has handled or is preparing to handle fertilizer at an insignificant profit. (6) About selling surplus hay and corn, I say that I, in my own experience, have always been in a position to sell at satisfactory prices more than I can possibly raise. If my good friend will disclose his identity, I will let him fill my own unfilled orders. That's fair. (7) Answering the lamentation about culling chickens, I am, in honesty and reverence, forced, again, to answer, "God alone knows." (8) Follow the same methods in raising cotton as does some successful cotton raiser in your own neighborhood, is the best solution to your cotton query; for the light of demonstration which first advocated wide rows and thin spacing, is, after all, a flickering light, and one which a prudent man could follow only with serious misgivings.

The foregoing suggestions are offered in a spirit of helpfulness to my misguided constituent and to others who view the situation with alarm. They may be modified, changed or ignored according to the caprice of each individual, and, in either event, I shall not feel hurt. They are only intended temporary expedients for the present emergency. And if they

Treasures Letter From Jeff Davis

Capt. R. N. Provine Possesses Personal Letter Written Him by Confederacy President from Beauvoir, Miss., in 1885.

The following letter in the handwriting of Jefferson Davis, the president of the Confederacy, is one of the many things which Capt. R. N. Provine, of Coles Creek, treasures as one of the golden links that couples the past with the present. The letter was written by Mr. Davis in response to one written him by Capt. Provine in which the captain enclosed a copy of an address that had been delivered by his son, then a student in the Big Creek school and now Dr. J. W. Provine, president of Mississippi College on the life and character of the President of the Confederacy. Mr. Davis' handwriting is of that style common to that day. The letter, which follows, evinces that kindly appreciation and gratitude common to great men and shows how genuinely touched men often are by what a boy writes of them:

"Beauvoir, Miss.,
August 5, 1885
"R. N. Provine, Esq.,
"My Dear Sir:

"Please accept my thanks for the paper you sent me containing Willie's speech and for your kind letter which accompanied it. It is to me indeed a very great consolation to know that the old Confederate soldiers remember me with appreciation and train their children as you have to carry the feeling on to another generation. Please make my grateful acknowledgments to your promising son and with heartfelt good wishes for you and yours, believe me your friend,

"JEFFERSON DAVIS"

The writer saw Capt. Provine for a few minutes the other day at his hospitable home just over in Calhoun County across the Grenada County line. He was 89 years old Thursday, March 28, and notwithstanding he had a severe attack of the flu this winter, the effects of which still linger with him, he yet rides about his farm and takes that keen, active interest in affairs which has so long characterized him. Just a few days ago he rode out over his farm of about 6,000 acres and while he was out, a rain came and when he attempted to return and to cross a creek, he found the waters up. He was either compelled to make his horse swim the creek or go several miles around to reach a bridge; he chose to swim the creek and did. On Monday of this week, he was chosen for the 36th time to head the Confederate Veterans of Calhoun County. It is a pity that such men as Capt. Provine ever have to grow old and give way to younger ones. He is one of the real patriots of Mississippi.

PASTORS HOLD MEETING

Methodist ministers of the Grenada district held an important business meeting in the Methodist Church here Monday.

Presiding Elder, Rev. E. H. Cunningham, presided and speeches were made touching the securing of the district quota for the superannuate endowment by the Rev. A. T. McIlwain, Greenwood, conference director of this work. Dr. S. S. Caruthers, lay member of the district, and others.

Dr. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada College, spoke to the body concerning the work of the college which is the property of the North Mississippi Conference. By unanimous agreement, it was decided that an exchange of pulpits in the district would be made the second Sunday in April, each pastor to bring a message of fact relative to the status of the superannuate endowment fund.

The pastors of the district will meet in a meeting in First Methodist Church, Winona, April 15, with the Rev. Melville Johnson and his people as hosts.

The conference in a body visited and inspected the new Sunday School building, one of the most modern and adequate in the south. Among those present were the Revs. J. T. Lewis and C. L. Oaks, Water Valley; S. H. Caffey, Oxford; E. L. Jernig, Abbeville; W. L. Robinson, Coffeeville; G. T. Sledge, Tie Plant; Roy Grisham, Waterford; M. D. Johnson and S. H. Hemphill, Winona; J. H. Holdrege, R. W. Sharp, Dr. J. R. Countiss, Grenada; J. S. Maxey, S. S. Caruthers, Duck Hill; Mesdames E. S. Lewis, E. H. Cunningham and others.

FLAMES DESTROY HOUSE ON COLLEGE BOULEVARD

Fire, thought to have originated from the kitchen flue at 10:30 a. m. Thursday, completely destroyed the residence on College Boulevard and Mound Street occupied by F. H. Horton and family. The Hortons lost practically everything they possessed in the way of clothing, furniture and other household effects. They carried no insurance. The dwelling was valued at about $3000 and was covered by insurance carried by Grenada College, owner of the property.

A workman was engaged in covering the roof at the time the flames burst through from the attic and the fire had gained such headway at that time that valiant work by the fire department could do nothing to check it.

Your fire losses are paid promptly when your insurance is placed with Hoffa & Moody.

Club Girls Endorse Extension Work

Members of 4-H Clubs Make Plea for Continuance of Extension Work in Grenada County.

Editor Sentinel:

Allow me to have a few words to say in behalf of club work. We girls and boys are the ones who are missing the county agents most. Our work that we had started needs more help and advice in order that we may continue the work. You must remember the boys and girls of today are to be the men and women of tomorrow. We have always held our monthly meetings at the school buildings and the kitchen of the woman's club. We have always won many dollars at the state and Grenada fairs.

Surely Grenada county has not realized what they lose.

Another loss to the boys and girls is we can not attend the annual short course held at A. and M. College for 4-H club members. Nor can we enter exhibits at the Jackson fair unless we have agents.

Yours for 4-H club work.
IONE GEE.
Holcomb, Miss., March 28, 1929.

Editor The Sentinel:

Allow me to say a few words in behalf of the county agents. We all know how much benefit they have been to us. What will Grenada county be like if we do not have our agents? Of course we realize there are some people of the county who never take any interest in that kind of work.

County agents have surely helped our community in the last six years. We have had many boys and girls to take an interest in club work. They were real workers. We all learned more and more along that line of work since we have organized our club. Before we knew anything about county agents, of course we were not interested in them. Since they have come and helped us organize our 4-H club we can hardly see how we are going to do without them.

Now about the salary they get; Money is in the fund for that kind of work. Why not use it for that? If it is not used for paying our agents it will go for something else. That is just as good a way to use it as anything else. We pay high taxes to go for different things. We deserve the county agents as well as good roads. We have always had them and good roads too.

I can say again that the county agents have helped our community in many ways. Our church has been covered and causes of the church have been aided with (Continued on page 4)

SERIES SERVICES TO BEGIN WITH SACRED MUSICALS

Preparatory to the dedication of their new Sunday school building which is just being completed, the Presbyterians of Grenada begin a series of services Sunday evening with the united choirs of Grenada presenting an Easter musical program. There will be no sermon at that time. The program which has been announced for this service is one that will be greatly enjoyed by those who attend as the best talent of Grenada will make up the combined choir. The Grenada Knights Templar will attend this service in a body.

Monday evening, April 1, one of the local pastors will preach and on Tuesday evening, Dr. J. R. Cunningham, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Bristol, Tenn., will fill the pulpit. He will at that time assume charge of the daily services, closing them with the formal opening of the new building.

Dr. Cunningham was formerly pastor of the church here, leaving here in 1925 to accept a call to Gainesville, Fla. He is universally esteemed in Grenada and his visit here next week will give his friends the opportunity to renew old ties.

SALARIES COMPARE FAVORABLY WITH PAY OF OTHER OFFICERS

Dr. Ferguson Says All County Like Grenada Not Expected to Pay as Large Salaries to County Agents Compared to Those Paid Other County Officers

Editor Sentinel:

As I have said before in view of the fact that Grenada needs good roads and a new courthouse more than County Agents, I submit this for publication, if you see fit to print same.

In the first place, the election last November on the question of Grenada county having or not having county demonstrators was not, in my opinion, an even test for the reason that no one opposed to having the agents felt interest enough to work against the proposition while those getting the "pie" worked hard to carry the election for the agents. The vote was what might be termed "a school demonstrator-urged vote." You know a few prominent people can carry almost any election if no one opposes the matter.

In the second place, Grenada county is a small county with a small population and not many white small farmers. For this reason this county can not be said to need the services of county agents as much so as a larger county that has twice the population and twice as many small white farmers, nor is Grenada county as able to continue paying the big salaries as the larger counties. As an illustration: Do you think it would be good business for the railroad company to pay their office force at Elliott the same as it pays at Grenada? Do you think it would be good business for Grenada Bank to pay the cashier at Holcomb the same as Grenada cashier get? I should not, because business and work at Elliott and Holcomb do not justify paying the same as Grenada pays. And it is the same with a small county compared to a large county. A majority of the board, I am glad to say, seems to be trying to enter on that business policy that the good business man does relative to his own affairs. I know of no better way to do business for the public.

The sheriff of Grenada county lacks a very great deal of receiving as much salary as the sheriffs of a great many larger counties, and why? Because his salary is based on the amount of work he does and on the amount of property there is in the county. Why apply the same rule to the county agents? The proposition from the authorities in the extension forces is to pay the agents in Grenada county just as much as the agents are paid in Hinds, Lauderdale and many of the other richer and larger counties of the state whose assessed property will run from two to four times what the property of Grenada county totals.

The county prosecuting attorney of this county is scarcely paid more than one-third, or maybe one-fourth, what he is paid in many of the larger counties, and why? Because the assessed property of Grenada county is not more than one-fifth or maybe one-sixth of some of the larger counties. Why break all rules and throw aside every rule of common sense when it comes to the agents?

Again I say we are paying more and more taxes every year while the people are really getting less able to pay, and yet we find some people complaining at the board of supervisors for trying to cut down expenses.

I understand the supervisors fixed the salaries of white county agents at $1200.00. In addition the government pays $1000.00, making $2200.00 a year. This seems to me to be fair wages for one who has no boss, goes when he pleases and vacations when he pleases. Let's see about what it cost the agent to live in Grenada. I don't think his gasoline for the year would average more than four gallons and one quart oil per day. Agents usually spend Saturdays in town, Sunday not at work, holidays and rainy days not doing much, in fact, I don't think anybody, unless it be a dairyman that works 365 days in the year, but I want to be fair so I will give the agent gas and oil every day of the year—four gallons of gasoline and quart of oil $1.25 per day for 365 days would be $454.25; wear and tear of car, 50c per day, $182.50; clothing $10.00 per month, $120.00; house rent $30.00 per month, $360.00; groceries, $40.00 per month $480.00. This makes $1396.75. This amount from receipts $2200.00 leaves a net profit of $803.25. How many of you farmers or business men have a net profit of $803.25, or as much as $600.00 at the end of the year after all expenses are paid? Don't overlook the fact that the county already has a colored agent at $50.00 per month. It seems to me (Continued on page 4)

FORMER GRENADA WOMAN BEGAN BEAUTY SHOP IDEA

In the St. Louis Post-Dispatch of Monday, March 18, appeared an article of some length about Mrs. Ella R. Berry, who claims to have been the originator of the idea which has expanded into the present "beauty shoppe" business of two hundred million dollars annually. Mrs. Berry was born in Grenada, being the daughter of the late Dr. G. W. Ragsdale. The article says she was the first person to copyright a full line of toilet preparations, and she still manufactures the same line of specialties she started in 1882, being the head of a company in St. Louis.

There in Grenada who remember Mrs. Berry should be interested in knowing these things and that she has met with such marked success.

Hoover Kicks Out Patronage Leaders

Informing Old Organizations in Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia of Lack of Confidence of Administration.

Washington, March 26.—President Hoover took a sweeping step today in his effort to break up political sectionalism south of the Mason and Dixon line.

In his first purely political pronouncement since entering the white house, he bluntly informed the old organizations in South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi that they had lost the administration's confidence because of abuse in handling federal patronage and called upon the people of those states to build new organizations.

Conversely he commended the leadership in the other southern states in the effort to "broaden the basis of party organization by the establishment of advisory committees of the highest type of citizenship to deal with administrative questions and who will also cooperate with independent democrats."

The organizations, the recreation of which was decreed by the president, are headed in South Carolina by Joseph T. Tolbert, for many years national committeeman and in Mississippi by Perry Howard, a negro who also has had long service with patronage distribution.

Leaders of the organization commended by the chief executive are R. B. Creager, national committeeman from Texas; Oliver D. Street, national committeeman from Alabama; Wallace Townsend, national committeeman for Arkansas; Emile Kuntz, national committeeman for Louisiana, and Glen B. Skipper, national committeeman for Florida.

THREE BROTHERS ARRESTED FOR STEALING MERCHANDISE

Ewing Kelly Thompson, 26, Robert Thompson, 24, and Oliver Thompson, 19, were arrested Sunday morning at Leflore on the charge of stealing merchandise of the Dulweber Mercantile Co. at that place. The store building of the Dulweber Mercantile Co. burned Wednesday of last week and what goods were saved from the flames were stored in a vacant warehouse adjacent to the railroad. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the owners missed some of the merchandise and when the matter was reported to Sheriff F. S. Nason, he detailed Deputy T. E. Tribble to stand guard over the warehouse Saturday night. About 12:30 the officer saw three men approaching the warehouse, two of them entering by prizing up the door. The other remained on the outside and, according to the officers, the two inside passed out a case of lard. Mr. Tribble started toward the warehouse door and as he did, the watcher outside saw him in the bright moonlight and started to run. He failed to heed the command to halt and the officer fired at him but missed. In the meantime, one of the two inside came out and he too, took to his heels. The officer evidently took better aim at his fleeing figure as he was seen to stagger momentarily but he continued running.

The third man in the warehouse, Robert Thompson, surrendered. Early the next morning, the sheriff accompanied Mr. Tribble back to Leflore and there they arrested the other two at the home of their father, J. T. Thompson, on the Dulweber plantation. Oliver Thompson was found to have 194 small shot lodged in his body from his hips down to his ankles.

The three youths told officers that they realized that they were doing wrong and were preparing to return the lard to the warehouse when their operations were halted by the deputy sheriff. The officers report that others in that section are being implicated by the three under arrest.

The Thompsons are natives of Carroll county. The oldest is an ex-soldier. One of the trio, Robert, has served time in Federal prison, according to Sheriff Nason, for possession of a still. His younger brother, Oliver, was caught at the still but Robert, who was not there at the time, came up and acknowledged ownership of the outfit and took all the blame upon himself.

SUBSCRIBERS SHOULD READ "WHY PITY THE FARMER"

An article appears on the second page of this issue taken from the Texas Commercial News under the above caption. It is reproduced at the instance of Mr. J. T. Thomas. Whether one agree, or not, there is much food for thought in it and something should at least cause the farmer to take a mental picture of how he is trying to run his business.

Figures Give Light On Tariff Question

Congressman Beggs of Ohio in Speech Deals with Proposition of Tariff on Hides and Leather Opposed by Manufacturers.

Inasmuch as the matter of levying a still higher protective tariff is to be considered by the coming special session of congress and that tariff taxes are to be more or less prominently before the country for some time, The Sentinel thinks possibly many of its readers may be interested enough in this very old question to at least study some of the very simple questions involved. It is therefore giving space to a portion of an address delivered in the lower house of congress March 3, by Hon. James T. Beggs of Ohio. Mr. Beggs dealt with the tariff at some length, but mainly his speech was devoted to the proposition to levy a tariff on hides or leather which is opposed by the shoe manufacturers of the United States.

Official estimates say that if a 15 per cent tariff is placed on leather and hides, the cost of shoes will be increased 30 cents per pair, or $105,000,000 to the American people (the figures are that there are 350,000,000 pairs of shoes made and sold in the United States every year) and in addition, $80,000,000 on trunks, suit cases and bags; $30,000,000 on harness and saddlery; $30,000,000 on gloves; $40,000,000 on pocket books and purses and $40,000,000 on other leather products.

A delegation representing the shoe manufacturers was given a hearing a few weeks ago before the Ways and Means Committee of the lower house of congress, the committee which has to do with shaping a tariff bill. The delegation urged an increased tariff on shoes brought into this country, yet admitted that only 1 per cent of the shoes sold in the United States were made in foreign countries. They insisted that to place a tariff on hides and leather would increase the price of shoes and curtail sales, but did not offer any explanation as to why hides had decreased in price 46 per cent during the last year while the prices of many shoes had been increased and none lowered.

The point is that to place a tariff on hides and leather would help the farmer and stock raiser, a thing that shoe manufacturers oppose.

The shoe manufacturers' delegation insisted that the retail dealers over the country were aroused as to the proposed tariff on hides and leather, and to back up this statement, they presented petitions to congress purporting to be signed by divers retail shoe dealers of the country protesting against the proposed tariff. Congressman Beggs showed that the petitions by retail dealers were prepared by the shoe manufacturers; in short that the whole scheme of protest came from the manufacturers, who were misleading the shoe dealers. As a matter of fact, the retail shoe dealers of the country would be glad to see a reduction in the price of shoes.

The following taken from Congressman Beggs' speech serves to show how the farmers and the stock raiser are getting it in the neck and how the shoe manufacturer is feasting on the purses of the people and also how the sweat is pouring from the brows of many millions to pay the price shoes are being sold for—the tariff. PAT HARRISON HERE FOR SPEECH FRIDAY

Makes Short Address to High School Students—Says Two Distinct Ideas of Government in United States—Fine Fellowship in Congress. Speaks Highly of Coolidge and Thinks Hoover Patriotic and Sincere—Spends Two Nights in Grenada.

Senator Pat Harrison, accompanied by his private secretary, Eugene Fly, spent last Thursday night in Grenada. The Senator was en route to Oxford and other points in North Mississippi. At Oxford he expected to visit his son who is spending his second year at the university. From Oxford, the Senator planned to go to Tupelo and to be present when Judge Long convened the circuit court there Monday. From Tupelo, he planned to go to Pittsboro, Calhoun County, and to speak there Tuesday morning where he hoped to see many of his friends who were no doubt in attendance upon circuit court.

The Senator accepted an invitation to address the students of the Grenada high school Friday morning. He told the teachers and the students something of his experience when attending the high school at Crystal Springs, his home town.

He briefly recounted some of the great things being done at the present time in the way of invention, and particularly of the radio, which he said was at the very sunrise of its usefulness. He said that no age ever had the problems of the present day, and that no period ever offered the opportunities to the youth that today does. He urged upon the students, concentration and persistence. He said that there was so much to be learned at the present time and that those who undertook to learn everything were unfortunate. He told the story of the hound in the fox chase who turned aside to pursue a rabbit.

Senator Harrison dwelt briefly on the questions that claim the attention of the United States senate and congratulated the country upon the fine fellowship that existed among the senators without regard to party lines. He said that there were two distinct theories of governmental policy in the nation and that when matters arose in the senate involving the application of one or the other of these ideas of government the discussions frequently became animated but that these differences were never personal and he stated that he was happy to say that some of his closest friends in the senate were members of the opposite party.

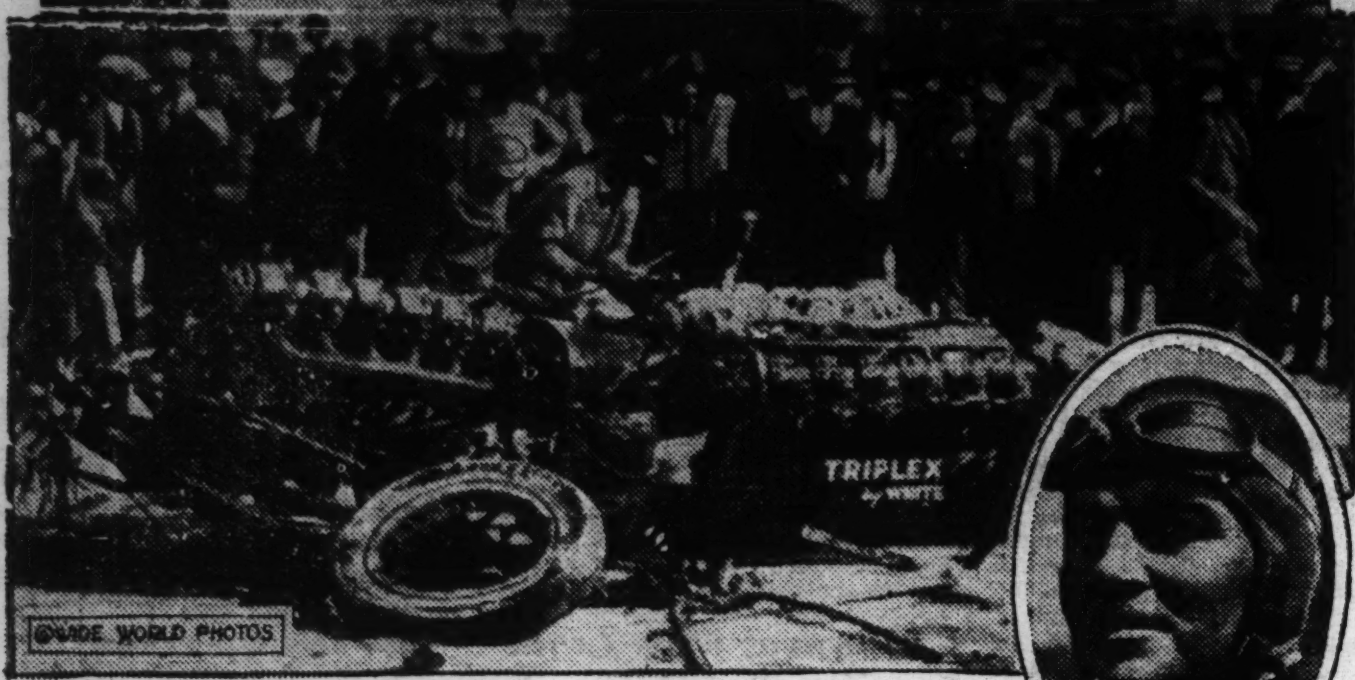

He referred to President Harding as being one of the most confident and kindly natured public men he ever knew. He paid a fine tribute to former President Coolidge who, he said, was a much misunderstood man. He named some of the characteristics of Mr. Coolidge which he said would be dominant in the lives of worth while and useful men. The Senator expressed great faith in President Hoover and said that he thought the country had every reason to count on the present administration for noble and patriotic endeavors.

The Senator said that Mississippi is a state of great possibilities and of greater opportunities, he believed, than almost any other state in the Union but he said that the future of the commonwealth depended in a very large measure on what is taught in the schools of the state and the viewpoint of the youth of the present day. He urged tolerance in government and a faith in the great party leaders of both parties, and that the students first of all needed to realize that what they accomplished and their success in the future was in their own keeping.

Senator Harrison and Eugene Fly spent Monday night in Grenada, having come over that afternoon from Tupelo. The next morning, the Senator went to Pittsboro, Calhoun County, where he spoke that day to a well filled court room. In none of his speeches has the Senator said anything about his candidacy for re-election which will be before the voters of Mississippi next year, yet it is universally understood that he will be a candidate and it is likewise generally understood that he will have no opposition.

A representative of The Sentinel spent several hours, with the Senator and Mr. Fly at the Planters Hotel on Thursday night of last week during which time the Senator related many things of his experience at Washington and his relations with the leaders of both parties of the Nation that do not always get into print. The Senator is the same gracious, good humored and just "common every day Pat" that he has always been. Being one of the great leaders of the Democratic party has not turned his head a whit. Pat is too big a man to ever be pompous or anything to his friends and constituents except just Pat Harrison.

DEATH OUTRUNS AUTO RACER

Experts See Cause of Many Accidents in Lee Bible's Death at Daytona

Crowd examines wrecked 1,500-h.p. "Triplex" in which Lee Bible (right) was hurled to death at Daytona, Fla., in attempt to break world auto speed record.

LADY LUCK left the driver's seat and Death took the Wheel when Lee Bible, forty-five-year-old garage mechanic, attempted to smash the world's automobile speed record at Daytona Beach, Florida, just after Major Seagrave, British Ace, had shattered all records by shooting his Golden Arrow across the sands at 231 miles an hour. In Bible's death safety experts see a warning to motorists in general. Eliminating the spectacular speed of 202 miles an hour at which he was driving, authorities say that numerous circumstances were no different than those of thousands of other motor fatalities that do not attract world-wide attention. Opinions differ as to the cause of the accident, but the consensus is that Bible was killed because he lost control of his giant "Triplex" car when he shut off the gas too quickly at the finish line. His tires were found to have been badly cut, however, and motor experts say improper inflation may have been one of the chief contributing factors in this tragedy which also resulted in the death of Charles R. Traub, the Pacific News photographer. Improper tire inflation figures in many automobile accidents, both on and off the race track, authorities state. A year ago tire difficulties were blamed for the death of Frank Lockhart at Daytona Beach when he made an effort to better a mark of 207 miles an hour. It was this factor, aside from his engine, which gave Major Seagrave most concern when he was preparing to break the record. The exact pressure for his tires had been scientifically determined and Seagrave tested them every time he moved his car. The death of Bible, who leaves a widow and two small children, threw a dampening influence over the speed tests. Major Seagrave, who had planned to beat his own speed canceled further attempts farmers themselves to prove to the world that they have reduced their acreage and are giving their wives and children freedom and an opportunity to enjoy something in their lives beside servitude.

The man who upholds the farmer in continuing his present methods is an enemy. I apologize to the world at large for the defense that I have put up for him all these years.

I firmly believe that the best friend the farmer will have will be the banker and merchant who refuse to finance him when he raises nothing but cotton. I own thousands of acres of land and will let it lie idle before I will permit the farmer to plant it all in cotton. The best friend the farmer has is the man who will help him to help himself and his greatest enemy is the man who leads him to believe that he is oppressed and that the world owes him a special favor. I pray the time will soon come when he will realize what he owes to his family, to his Maker, to his country, and to himself; that he will understand that no one is going to do anything for him that he himself will not do for the other fellow. I want him to have all the happiness, pleasure and prosperity that he is entitled to, but no special privilege. I pray that I live to see the day when he will reap a just reward, be able to look every man in the face and tell him where to head in. A misery loves company, let me suggest that in the three years following the farmers' 18,000,000 bale jamboree of 1928 not only is the farmer broke, but exporters, importers and mill men have suffered severely.

Worth Nicholls, a schoolboy of Tulsa, Tex., made enough money from two pure-bred Jersey cows to insure him a college education.

WHY PITY THE FARMER?

"The Farmer Has Only Himself to Blame for His Condition".

(By Mike H. Thomas, President, M. H. Thomas & Co. Dallas.) (In this arraignment of the cotton farmer, Mr. Thomas brings to bear the wisdom and experience gained in 43 years in the cotton business. An interesting article by an interesting personality.)

I was born on a farm in Dallas County. Ever since I moved to town my voice has been raised in behalf of the farmer. I have done my best to help him market his crop profitably as possible and my sympathy has always been with him.

But I regret to be compelled to openly declare myself no longer his supporter.

I transfer my sympathy to his family for I do indeed feel sorry for the wife and children of the southern farmer. But I can no longer consent to give the farmer himself anything but the severest criticism for his willful and wanton abuse. His wife is compelled to work 365 days in the year, while he does not work over 200. The man who lives in town—the banker, the merchant, the doctor, the lawyer, the ditch-digger, the mill hand and the bookkeeper—works 300 days out of the year while this aforesaid farmer who is putting up a great howl demanding farm relief is really too lazy to scratch when he itches. He refuses to produce anything to eat and plants cotton alone.

I traveled the 100 mile trip from Dallas to Hawkins in Wood County frequently last fall and there was not one hog to the mile. The farmers bring only cotton to town to sell, except in the rarest cases. Many of them buy vegetables, butter, eggs and chickens—when these foods are on their tables at all.

I firmly believe that every citizen in the United States is entitled to equal opportunities and to share honors equally—but only in proportion to service rendered and, since everyone else is working 300 days in the year and the farmer about two-thirds of that time, he is getting all that is due him. If he is not satisfied with his share, and wants more, let him earn more by working more, not by whining and praying for someone to please pass a farm relief bill for his benefit.

The farmer has only himself to blame for his condition, and if he is foolish enough to plant cotton and get hungry he should censure no one but himself. He can plant less cotton and direct to eat and receive more money but, instead, he plants everything in cotton and then commences to pray to the Lord to please destroy one-half he plants so that his family will not starve.

Farmer Well Informed But Negligent

I have been told by many that the farmer is ignorant and does not know any better. That is all a mistake, for with the automobile and radio he is just as well informed as any man in the city. He is daily advised by the market authorities, the statisticians, and the marts of trade, and he is in possession of all the facts as soon as they develop. He is in no wise kept in darkness, so there is no excuse whatever for ignorance in the United States. There are, in every precinct, public schools with able teachers and instructors in the arts and sciences, as well as in agriculture.

The United States Government not only issues all kinds of press reports and pamphlets of its own, and broadcasts over the radio from time to time, but it also provides highly trained county agents to study local problems and conditions and give direct assistance and instruction to the farmer. It issues information before planting season each year showing whether conditions relative to each crop acreage of that crop, whether prospects are pointing to overplanting, and warning against over-production.

Newspapers like the Dallas Morning News have spent millions endeavoring to get the farmer to diversify and live at home; public speakers have traveled the entire belt in a sympathetic effort to get him to live at home, plant less cotton and become self-supporting.

The farmer says no one is interested in him, but that is not true. Ninety-five per cent of all the successful men in town were raised on farms. These men are fully informed on the part that the farmer plays, and know that the Great Creator of the Universe made the farmer the cornerstone of prosperity. The Bible says that "the husbandman that laboreth must be first partaker of the fruits" and when the farmer does not make a profitable crop we get to a very unhealthy financial condition and sooner or later must pay the price. There is no reason why the farmer should be a favored son; everyone must work according to the law of God, which says we must earn our living by the sweat of our brow.

Farmer Passes the Buck

For sixty years I have been fooling myself, thinking that the farmer was very much abused. I confess that we have isolated cases where he has been abused and mistreated by some cold, cruel-hearted merchant or banker, but those are exceptions. We also have a few farmers who really conduct their farms on business systems, studying the wants of the world, producing everything that they need at home, and who desire to improve themselves and cultivate their crops. These farmers are always prosperous and are not kicking and screaming for someone to pass a law to buy their overproduction.

But generally the farmer sells everything that he brings to the market for cash and buys on credit, thus forcing the world to carry him. If there is a failure he is never the goat, as he looks well into it that the other man must carry his load. In other words, he always places the monkey upon the back of the other fellow and then, should the banker or merchant want either protection or legitimate interest, complains that he is being held up.

The successful and outstanding men of today are men who started without a penny, worked day and night, and housed every cent they made until they got a toe-hold. You never hear the merchant who over-buys, asking for a law to be passed that will take care of any articles that he has over-bought, nor does he "cuss" the farmer for not buying his surplus stock. He recognizes that it is his own mistake—not anyone's fault but his own. He does not ask anyone to assist him in carrying a surplus stock without offering them an inducement by lowering the price. When he purchased the stock he naturally thought that he would meet with a good demand; if disappointed he sacrifices it; if he wishes to place it on the market, or keep it on the shelves until the time arrives when the world wants it.

The cotton mills also have fat and lean years. They are not demanding that laws be passed to take care of their surplus, or to finance them. And there is no reason why the farmer should not carry his part of the burdens of this country.

Men and women in town, in the same walks of life, must pay rent, or get out; the owners of property must pay taxes, or give up the property. But the farmer has no house rent to pay, he has the privilege and opportunity of having his own garden, meat, lard, milk, butter, eggs and chickens, and in many cases has free wood.

The bookkeeper, typist, drug clerk, dry goods clerk, mill hand and ditch-digger must dig up the cash for all these necessities, must work 300 days out of the year, and have neither the time nor the opportunity to produce anything outside of their salaries. Yet they are not asking that a law be passed to help them.

Farmer Controls Own Destiny

Every farmer has both the opportunity and the time to produce a good living and his feed at home, and if he does not the blame is his own. I have plead with the farmer for thirty-five years to live at home and never to come to town without bringing more to sell than he comes to buy, thus making his cotton crop a surplus cash crop which he is not forced to sell at a disadvantage, and enabling him to use the proceeds for luxuries, improvements and investments.

The banks do not have any doubtful paper on German or Bohemian farmers. That is not because they are superior to the American farmer intellectually, but because they know that they must earn their substance by hard work. The Great Creator will help us to work out of trouble, but He will never help us to cry out or whine out.

Now, if the southern farmer is not satisfied with the price of cotton, all he has to do is to reduce his acreage and, as he controls the price by his production, he will have no trouble in advancing the price throughout the world to where it will bring him happiness and prosperity. In 1926 his overproduction put cotton to ten cents; in 1927 and 1928 moderate crops put cotton above twenty cents. Cotton does not deteriorate rapidly, and if the farmer produces more than the world needs the new crop will meet the tail end of the old crop.

Merchandising vs. Cotton Marketing

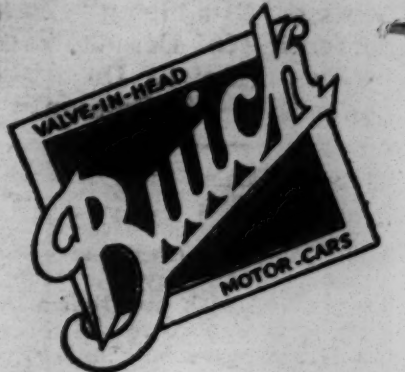

From this time on I am going to take the position that the farmer is perfectly satisfied with the price, or he would not over-plant. Never again will I advise friends, customers, spinners or merchants to buy cotton unless the producer believes in it himself and plants and holds accordingly. During my 43 years in the cotton business the farmer has sold all or part of each crop below the cost of production. That has been done for two reasons, (1) overproduction and (2) marketing twelve months supply in three months thus forcing the world to carry his own child and then complaining because the world wants pay for it.

Conditions are changing. The chain stores are marketing the ware cheaper on account of the fact that they either manufacture the articles themselves or buy in great quantities. Mills that used to buy six to twelve months ahead now buy a few weeks ahead; wholesalers that used to lay in a year's supply now buy from hand to mouth; retailers that formerly carried large stocks of goods now have but little on their shelves—if you want a dozen collars of any size or make you will find the average merchant has but a few of your size but will send and get them from the wholesaler. Everyone now works in harmony—except the farmer. He is the only one who does not show exhibition of independence and wise forethought for those who are dependent upon him.

The only man the farmer is fooling now is himself. Right-minded and intelligent men know that the farmer knows better but does not desire to do better. I have spent much time and money cabling to the world, pleading in his behalf for higher prices. That again I will never do until he gives me an incentive by planting less cotton and more foodstuffs. I have foolishly attended conventions trying to bring about a reduction of acreage, but the next one I attend will be a convention called by the

TO THE PEOPLE OF GRENADA COUNTY

Dear Friends:

I want to ask for a small space in the county paper, also I want to ask a small favor of the citizens of said county. I have been here two months the first of April. I was sentenced for a charge of grand larceny, the amount valued at $30., was sentenced Jan. 31st, 1929 in circuit court of said county and I feel like that if the people of this county think I had a sufficient amount of punishment and feel that they would like to see me out with my dear wife and little baby who are left to do the best they can, my appreciation will be shown you by making a better citizen, also living an honorable life in the future. Dear friends I have tried very hard to make a model prisoner since I've been here, and I have also attended services and Sunday School each Sunday, and have taken a great deal of interest in Bible reading and prayers. I have realized my wrongs in the past and regret it very much now, but I feel like if I get out of here that I'll never be into any more trouble and if you feel like signing a petition for me later my many thanks shall go to you.

I have a good wife and one small little baby and the thought of being separated from them is very hard but if I ever get out I promise to live with them and be an honorable father and husband. Dear friends any thing you do towards helping to get me pardoned out on these sure promises, it will surely be appreciated. I hope I don't have any enemies any where. Please study these few lines over. Kind regard, LEWIS LILES, Camp 5, Parchman, Miss., March 26, 1929.

MINISTER ASKS CORRECTION

Grenada Sentinel, Grenada, Miss.

Dear Mr. Lawrence:

I notice an editorial in your last week's issue, March 22nd, headed "What is the Matter with Folks?" You stated in this article that the "great Baptist denomination had been robbed at least three times by trusted, so-called Christian, agents to the tune of millions."

Since this statement is not true I am asking you to please correct it, for our people feel that it is both unjust and injurious. I suppose you must have had in mind the shortage in our foreign mission board of a few years ago by the treasurer, which was covered—every cent of it by his bond and property given to the denomination by his wife. We did not lose a cent. The other incident, and the only one in which our denomination lost anything, was the Carnes case and I herewith give you the facts: his shortage has been covered by the Honor Day and Christmas gifts, his bond, and also all of his realty and other securities he owned, leaving $225,000 our denomination will lose.

I feel sure that you will be glad to make correction of such a mistake. When I tell you that during the past eight years we have raised two hundred and ninety-two million, four hundred and thirty-three thousand, nine hundred and twenty-eight dollars and ninety-five cents and that the total gain in value of denominational resources was one hundred and thirty-four million, six hundred and fifty-eight thousand, one hundred and fifty-two dollars and forty-two cents, you will see that it is only a small percentage of loss. However, we deplore the fact that we have had any losses on this account whatsoever.

Very truly yours, W. E. FARR, Grenada, Miss., March 26, 1929.

Dr. W. E. Farr,

Grenada, Miss.

Dear Brother Farr:

Yours of yesterday which was written because of an editorial which appeared in the columns of The Sentinel of last week, has been received.

You evidently failed to observe that the editorial was not ours but that it was taken from another newspaper. The editorial was used because we thought it directed attention to the drift of what many of us think is a very careless age. No thought was given to any particular feature of it and most certainly not to the published defalcations of certain officers of your great church. But since you have called our attention to the fact that your church has had but two officials to be short in accounts, we respectfully submit that even that is bad. But regardless of the number, what one or even three individuals might be guilty of, could in no way reflect on the integrity and Christian life of the great Baptist church. However, we must say that if we measure standards by what many of the greatest and most thoughtful writers and leaders of the country are repeatedly saying, "the moral standards of the country were never lower". As one of the many evidences that this is a recognized fact, we might call your attention to the leading editorial in the Nashville Christian Advocate of March 22, under the caption, "The Course of The Law". From which we take the following: "Criminals in the United States, according to press dispatches, are evidently increasing in number and in terrorism", and "The great extent of criminality now raging calls for the attention and activity of all patriots". We shall be glad to accede to your wishes and pass on to our readers what you state as to the money handled by the two officials you mention.

Very Sincerely, Your friend, G. M. LAWRENCE, Grenada, Miss., March 27, 1929.

to make a model prisoner since I've been here. I have tried at all times to obey all orders as I was told to before coming. I have attended services and Sunday School each Sunday, also have been reading the Bible and praying each night and all idle times. I have been forgiven for my past sins by the good Father of heaven. Now if the people of my home county have forgiven me and think that I have had a sufficient amount of punishment, also have a good kind wife who is in bad health at this writing, two very small sweet little babies that's left to the mercies of the world for their living. Now dear friends if you feel that you should like to see me out with this little family of mine, please sign the petition that shall be around later. I truly hope that I haven't an enemy in the county. I also promise the people that I shall live a Christian and shall never be into any more trouble of any kind again. I will surely appreciate freedom again. I have thrown away 26 years of lost life, but I am now trusting the Lord as my personal Saviour. I sometimes feel much disgraced, being deprived of freedom, then again I feel that I have been forgiven for my sins of the past life and I look down upon my poor old daddy and my wife and babies and sisters because I am wearing the stripes today. Dear friends, if you just help to petition me out of here, I will truly promise the people to live an honorable life and be a citizen worth something to my community. Anyone speaking a word for me will certainly be appreciated.

It's Old Fashioned

.....and it's old-fashioned to let money lie idle. Up-to-date folks INVEST their savings these days and thus make their money earn more money for them. They do not have to depend entirely upon their salary or wages to meet expenses. For instance: Every 3 months we send money to hundreds of our customers and other local people who own shares of our Preferred Stock. This money is the "dividend" earned for these folks by the dollars they have invested in our stock. Each share pays a dividend every 3 months on February 1, May 1, August 1 and November 1. If you owned only ten shares you would be entitled to receive a dividend of $15.00 every 3 months thus increasing what you earn yourself by $5.00 a month. That's certainly worth while, isn't it?

EASTER REFLECTIONS.

Sunday, next, March 31, will be more or less observed by the Christian world as the day which marks the anniversary of the Christ coming up out of the grave, of resurrection day.

No race of people in all the world's history has been without some sort of religion.

Call it what you may, there is an anxiety, a reaching out, a hope, a faith that when life's fitful fever is over, there is prepared a happier and an enduring abiding place somewhere, the knowledge of which rests alone in some supreme being, or as the Christian devoutly believes, in the bosom of God, and those who have had their sins washed away and are now on the opposite side of Jordan's stormy banks.

Life would be but sounding brass if this world were all of it. Indeed Solomon's words, spoken when he was in the low grounds, would haunt us daily, "all is vanity and vexation of spirit", and make living a thing of unutterable woe if this life were the beginning and the end. But later, and when the spirit of contrition and a recognition of his own limitations and unworthiness obsessed Solomon, he gave utterance to the words which have rung down the centuries like a clear bell in the skies and which have served to make multiplied millions to take their own reckoning and to make men and women new creatures in Christ Jesus, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth". Still later, and when he thought perhaps that he was nearing the end, he summed up the whole thing and gave it to the world as a never fading or never flickering sunbeam, "Hear the conclusion of the whole matter, fear God and keep his commandments for this is the WHOLE DUTY of man".

Religion is the exercise of faith, faith in something not seen. The Christian religion is faith, expectations, realized. The Christian religion is love in action.

The world has its celebrations. The anniversaries of battles are celebrated. The birthdays of great leaders are appropriately recognized. The anniversaries of the beginnings of humanitarian movements are fittingly commemorated, but there is no day that can or does mean as much to humanity as that of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Thus it is that humanity may regard Easter as a day of assurance, as a day that pledges our Creator to take us home to him when our journey here is ended. It is a day that opens wide all the windows of the Celestial City from which voices tender, loving and true are beseeching those left behind to join them there. It is a day that proves that the grave shall not be an eternal resting place. Christ conquered death when he broke the bonds of the grave. Christ, by permitting himself to be crucified and his body to be laid beneath the sod as the way of all humanity, furnishes the very strongest possible assurance or pledge, that it is not all of life to go halting and stumbling through this world.

The death of Christ and his burial is the very strongest possible proof or pledge that God has demanded nothing of his creatures that he did not endure or undergo himself. We are often disturbed, many, many, many times grievously distressed, and perhaps think that our lot is a hard one, but Jesus was even more disturbed and distressed. He had no place he could call home while upon the earth. He had not a place of his own to lay his head. Could there be anything sadder or more heartrending than his agony in the Garden of Gethsemane? What can be supposed to have run through his mind after his arrest and when he was being carried before men who claimed to have the right to try him? Think, for one moment, how his body suffered when he was being made to carry the cross upon which he was to be nailed, there to bleed and die? What must have been the terror of his soul when he spoke the words that for the moment indicated that he was wondering if his own father had deserted him?

So desperately in earnest, so concerned, was Jesus about saving the world from sin, that when he went away he sent the Comforter to walk with us, to talk with us, to admonish us and to show us the way in all doubtful situations. He was not satisfied to leave the world alone even after his sojourn here.

Hence it may be said that, from a human viewpoint at least, God, when he promised the Holy Spirit, thought that he was exhausting his last remedy to save men and women and to make sure that they enjoy that beautiful and happy abode provided for those who trust, love and fear him. "Fear", used in the sense God would have us understand it, is not the fear that men understand in their earthly relations.

Christ is risen. He ascended into heaven, but promised to come again, and is coming to those who will allow him or who seek him every day. He rose from the grave. He brought others up out of the grave. He furnished unimpeachable evidence that man "shall live again".

May Easter 1929 bring us nearer a proper realization of our duty to God. May it push away any dark clouds and permit us to at least get a glimpse of that radiant grandeur and sublimity that is in store for those who strive to live right in Christ Jesus.

PRESIDENT HOOVER FOR CLEAN POLITICS.

President Hoover made an announcement a few days ago that the bartering and selling of federal patronage in the southern states, or anywhere else, must be stopped. The President's announcement means a change in party leadership in several southern states, including Mississippi. Evidently the President intended for patronage dispensers all over the country to take warning.

There has been much said about the selling of federal patronage in Mississippi and several other southern states during the past year or more, indeed patronage selling has been charged for a number of years. Whether true or not, Mr. Hoover evidently intends to avoid the very appearance of such things during his administration.

tion. The President is entitled to the aid and cooperation of all patriotic citizens in any effort he may make to place the politics of the country on a higher level. Many know that political situations in both of the great parties in many sections of the country are in a bad way and that much purging is needed.

Mr. Lamont Rowlands is said to be slated to advise the President on such matters as the President demands as to Mississippi matters. Mr. Rowlands is a wealthy business man of Picayune and is spoken of by those who know him well as a high toned Christian gentleman, and as a citizen deeply concerned for the welfare of the state. It would therefore seem that the best interests of the state, insofar as it can be affected by federal matters, should be safe in his hands.

A MISTAKE—BUT NOT IN CONTEMPT.

Our friend, Fred Sullens, editor of the Jackson Daily News, has been cited to appear before one of the U. S. Judges of Mississippi to answer the charge of contempt of court for an article he wrote for his newspaper about the Perry Howard, et al, trial, which was about to take place at Meridian. As we see it, the contempt charge will not lie. A layman would undoubtedly say that Sullens was clearly within the rights sought to be set forth in the words, "freedom of the press".

Nevertheless we think the article an unfortunate one. We say this without any regard to political lines or of the interests of those involved. Sullens is an able, brilliant and forceful writer but he too frequently breaks out at the wrong place and, in so doing, in our judgment, tends to nullify his own influence and in instances to hamstring the very cause he is seeking to serve.

Articles of the character Sullens wrote give a wrong picture of Mississippi abroad and often, we dare say, bring up embarrassing questions to our leaders who are striving to get Mississippi to forge to the front economically as well as otherwise.

BOOTLEGGERS SWAMPING HATTIESBURG

The officials of Hattiesburg and of Forrest county have arrested and had before the courts during the past two weeks some sixty odd persons charged with running stills or with bootlegging. More than twenty-five of them have been tried and have either plead guilty or been convicted by juries.

Monday night, the residence where three federal prohibition officials were stopping was fired into but fortunately nobody was hurt. The men who fired the shots were seen by neighbors across the street as they sped away. Hattiesburg is aroused. The good people of Forrest county are to be commended for the heroic efforts being made to clean up these whiskey dens of vice. The action of the would-be murderers shows once again the devilment that the sale or making of whiskey puts into the heads of some people.

off on shoes, as these facts will show, should be decreased and not increased. A portion of the people may be fooled all the time about a tariff being no tax on the consumer, but all the people can not be fooled all the time. But to Mr. Beggs' speech:

• Here are a few facts, I should like to give to the Members of the Seventy-first Congress:

Are not hides and calfskins much lower in price today than they were in 1912, while the prices of shoes are 80 per cent higher than they were then?

If the price of shoes fluctuates with the price of hides and leather, as stated by this Shoe Leather Dealers' Association, how do they explain this disparagement?

One year ago light packer cow hides sold at 24 cents per pound. Now they are selling at 13 cents a pound, a slump of 11 cents, or 46 per cent.

Raw calfskins sold a year ago for 29 cents a pound and today the same grade of calfskins sell for 18 cents a pound. A slump of 11 cents, or 38 per cent.

What has happened to the prices of shoes? They have certainly not decreased. Generally speaking, they may have remained stationary.

This shrinkage in the prices of calfskins reflected in dollars means what to the producers of hides, or the farmers? The average cowhide weighs 50 pounds. That makes a shrinkage of $5.50 per hide. There were 14,000,000 cattle slaughtered last year in the United States. The loss on hides alone would be five and a half times 14,000,000 or $77,000,000.

There were 11,000,000 calves slaughtered in this country last year. A calfskin averages about 10 pounds, which would make a loss of $1.10 per skin, or a total loss of more than $12,000,000 on calfskins. Take the loss on cowhides, $77,000,000, and add to that the $12,000,000 loss on calfskins, and we have a total loss to the farmers of $89,000,000. When I say loss to the farmers, I mean that, whether the farmer slaughtered the animal or the packer slaughtered it. The value of the carcass plus the value of the several by-products are all reflected in the price paid the farmer for the animal on hoof.

Now, the question arises naturally, if the producers of hides, or the farmers, received last year $89,000,000 less for hides than they did the year before, did the buyers of leather products, shoes, and so forth, save that? If this so-called Shoe Leather Dealers' Association can offer any evidence to show that the masses of the people who buy shoes paid $89,000,000 less for their commodities last year than previous, there might be some justification for their claim that to put a tariff on hides would increase the prices to the ultimate consumer. Mr. L. J. Wilbur, of Swift & Co., said over the radio on January 26 of this year that every loss of hide value was deducted from the price paid to the farmer for the animal. I quite agree with that statement; hence the only conclusion to be drawn is that agriculture received $89,000,000 less last year for this one item of their production than they should have received, by reason of a lack of a tariff. That statement could not stand alone unless supported by some import facts.

Let us look into the importations. There was imported into the United States in the year 1928, last year, $44,000,000 worth of leather or 41 per cent of the total consumption. We find that 54,000,000 square feet of calf and kip alone was imported into this country last year. I am anxious for the Members to get this statement. While the price of raw hides decreased 46 per cent last year the importations of leather products in volume have increased 587 per cent from 1923 to 1927, inclusive.

Can any Member of Congress who believes in the principle of protective tariff say that in the face of the above figures the farmer is being adequately protected on one of his products where protection could easily be given?

From what countries have these importations come? Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Germany, Netherlands, Switzerland, United Kingdom, and Canada.

Notice in one particular class of importations what happened. In 1913 we imported $127,735 worth of calf and kip leather. In 1928 we imported $14,000,000 worth of similar grades.

offer succor to the anguish of even a perplexed mind, I shall feel amply repaid for my faltering efforts.

Mr. Editor, this is running to such an interminable length that you may cut half or all of it, or, if you prefer, run it as a serial, I'm hardly half through.

Now, regarding the salaries of the members of the board of supervisors which our solicitous friend seems disturbed about, I can not see the connection. For his and others' information, however, I will say that their compensation is established by a law enacted by the legislature of the state.

The practice of the servants of the people of taking, in full measure, the compensation offered by the government for honest and conscientious service, is well established by precedents hoary with age. And I shall not be the first to seek to break away from this time-worn path.

I hazard the statement that my critic, if he were a member of the board, would accept the salary fixed by law just as the members of the board are doing and as their worthy predecessors have done for years.

About this "budget business", I doubt whether my discriminating friend knows a budget from a bustle.

Regarding the thought advanced by your learned correspondent that the board will spend the money anyway, I say, if folks think that the board will throw away the funds needlessly, then they should, at once, get a new board. Do I hear a deafening shout of "Amen" to that thought?

Hastening on, I do wish to say something about the poorly veiled threat, "there's another day coming". I presume that that is the day when I and others like me who are not subservient to the shifting whims of passing fancy, will be dumped bodily into the sea of political oblivion. When they do

Marshal Foch Is Second Allied War Leader to Die

General Pershing Is Only Survivor of Great Triumvirate—Earl Haig Was First to Go

With the passing of Marshal Foch, death has claimed the second of the great triumvirate of Allied military leaders who brought World War victory to the Allies. Earl Haig, the British Commander-in-Chief, died January 29, 1929. General Pershing, the American war-time head of the American legions, alone remains.

By the irony of fate, Marshal Foch's fatal illness was directly traceable to a gesture of homage he paid to the Allied soldier dead last Armistice Day. In the falling rain he went without his hat through the memorial ceremonies in Paris and contracted a cold which quickly resulted in more serious diseases which his declining vitality was not able to overcome. The Marshal was 77 years old.

Evidence of the affection in which the French generalissimo was held in this country was widely manifested, and received formal acknowledgment from M. Maxime Mongendre, French Consul-General in New York.

"Not only Frenchmen, but people of those allied nations whose soldiers fought side by side under his leadership for the future of humanity, share in this grief, and I am grateful for this opportunity to thank the many Americans who have tendered their condolences to me as the representative of France, and previously expressed their hope for his recovery," Monsieur Mongendre said.

"It is doubly to be regretted that his illness should have had its inception in an act of homage to the gallant dead, when he contracted a cold during the ceremonies on Armistice Day."

The sturdy strength of will which carried Foch undaunted through the vicissitudes of war had been equally marked through his entire illness. His great spirit alone carried him past the initial crisis last January, when the cold, which soldier-like, he at first endeavored to shake off, settled in the bronchial tubes, causing a hacking cough and finally affecting seriously the action of his heart.

carry me out to that political grave, no doubt already dug, it can be said, I hope, while playing my minor role on the political stage, I did not set my sails to every shifting wind, nor was I carried off my balance by every vociferous minority which waved its hammer before me.

Respectfully,
W. W. WHITAKER,
Holtcomb, Miss., March 25, 1929.

the only man or woman who can possibly understand the business of farming is the farmer, that is the one who owns or rents land and tries to make it pay.

Dear Reader, don't get mad at me if you don't agree with me. When I shoot, I try to shoot straight from the shoulder. The cost of running the county is mounting higher year by year and the ability of the average taxpayer to meet the demands upon him is not increasing in proportion.

As Governor Patterson of Tennessee says, "we are loading our own backs with those of our posterity with indebtedness that may crush unless we are wise enough to fix a limit". I have heard it said, one of the greatest benefits of the county agent is teaching boys to stay on the farm. In my opinion about the only way that might keep the boy on the farm is to put a limit on public education. It is just as natural for a young man with a finished education to leave the farm as it is for a duck to swim. Now, don't misunderstand me—I am not opposed to education, but I do believe higher education should be at the expense of the parent or student and not the public. For the reason that every boy can master a high school education and use it to advantage. The boy that can, will easily find a way for the finished education. Children should be taught more at home and less by the public.

Just a few words about hog-cholera and vaccination. While it is true cholera is the most prevalent disease of swine, it is also true that hogs have other sicknesses. I sometimes think we have spread more cholera and anthrax with vaccines than we ever got rid of in this county. The best way is to go to the root and try to stamp out the disease. Separate the sick hogs as much as possible from the well ones. When one dies bury or burn the carcass. I am of the opinion too much stress is being put into the dairy and Jersey cow by the county agent and farmers development association, or rather there is not enough being put into the beef type of cattle. The farmer should have separate pastures so as to have both the Jersey and the beef animal. People have got to have meat to eat and the beef don't require so much of the farmer's time as the Jersey cow.

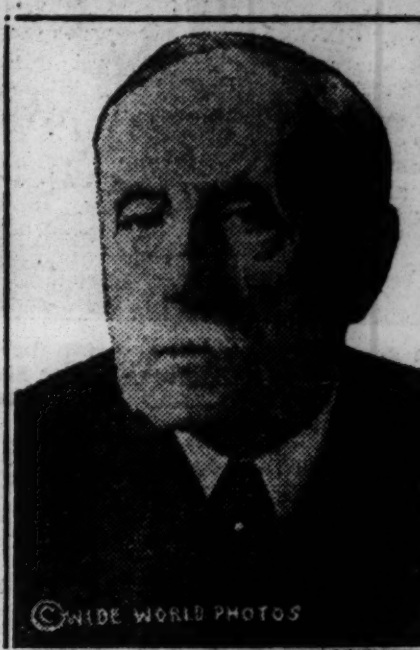

My reasons for writing, Mr. Editor, is to try to help stop the waste that is causing the taxpayers to continue facing higher taxation.

Thanking you in advance for the publication, I am,

Cordially,
Wm. P. FERGUSON,

ion he 'obeyed orders' with the same strict promptness which he exacted from his own troops. Recently, it is reported, he rallied his strength and sought to speak with Madame Foch. This infraction of discipline was quickly checked by the nurse. "You must not talk," she said. And the general was silent.

Marshal Foch's fatal illness occurred at a time when several other French statesmen were suffering from dangerous colds, and reports from Paris stated that the epidemic has aroused agitation against the old custom of keeping the head uncovered during military memorial services for the dead. A similar agitation was reported from England, when it was announced that King George's recent illness had had its inception at the Armistice Day celebrations when the King stood for long intervals bareheaded in the rain.

prize money of the community booth that was put on at the fair. We work not only for the check but for the knowledge. They have given us different ideas of doing things and we find that a new method works out better than the same old way of doing things.

Some people will say, "they never even came around to help me do anything and why do I want to pay such high taxes to pay them for something they did not do?"

Listen, let's stop and think for a while! How many times have you ever asked them for information? I am sure they would be willing to help you or give you information about anything you ask. The taxes will not be lowered for those who do not have county agents.

Why not let's be represented at the annual club congress and the other different places that we have an opportunity to go to and let the other counties know that the 4-H club boys and girls are doing real work in Grenada county? They are improving their homes, communities, and county.

Now what would Grenada county be like without the county agents to keep the 4-H club work going on? Every one will see that Grenada county will be drifting backward instead of going forward without county agents. Let's all boost club work and not let Grenada county be the only one without agents.

Yours for 4-H club work,

Middle Life Troubles

"About twenty years ago, my health was very bad," says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Terrell, Texas. "I was passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal. I was not at all strong, and my nerves got all upset. I had hot flashes, and sometimes would get suddenly so faint I could not stand up. My head would whirl, and I could not see a thing. I would have to lie down for hours at a time."

"I improved so much after I had taken Cardui for a while. I continued the medicine for some months, until I had passed the critical period. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes. We have all been better for having taken it."

Where Is Your Market?

Undoubtedly the secret of many a failure in advertising campaigns (and there are many of them) lies in the lack of knowledge of just where one's market really is.

To use an extreme illustration, what good could possibly come from advertising corsets in the Police Gazette or plug tobacco in the Ladies' Home Journal?

One manufacturer whose entire product is used by a technical industry made the mistake of using daily newspapers, and afterwards found that there were only 223 concerns in America engaged in that particular industry.

Another house who sells to manufacturers was using a trade paper that circulates among jobbers and retailers and had consumed most of his year's appropriation before discovering that he was missing his market entirely.

The point is, that there are many concerns whose only profitable avenue to sales lies in the use of direct mail.

Before launching upon a campaign of advertising make a survey of your possible market, and if periodicals do not furnish the medium then let us talk to you about good printed matter to be mailed to your prospects.

Column About Colored People of Grenada County Items by J. H. Phillips

Mrs. Cora Bostic, a highly esteemed citizen of this community, and wife of the late Rev. J. S. Bostic, died Monday morning after a lingering illness of several months. She was resigned to her fate and stated her illness would terminate her life. After the death of her husband, life's sweetness passed from her and seemed to have no charms. She was a splendid character, a Christian woman whose life cast a radiant sunshine to make life the association of all who came in contact with her. The funeral service was conducted on Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. at Belleflower Baptist church of which she was a consistent member, partaking in all the activities of church work. Rev. J. M. Weathers, who was her pastor for many years and under which pastorate she accepted Christ when a mere child, delivered the funeral oration. Having known her from infancy he was well prepared to give an interesting testimony of her christian character. Rev. A.

Got Up In The Morning Feeling DIZZY

"I began to suffer with headache and biliousness," says Mr. John C. Malone, of Buena Vista, Ohio. "I had a hurting through the middle part of my body which seemed to come from indigestion. I would get constipated, and then feel all out of sorts. I would get up in the morning feeling dizzy, and everything I ate would disagree with me."

"Someone asked me why I did not try Black-Draught. I found it to be just the medicine I needed. When I feel a spell coming on, I begin by taking a dose of Black-Draught, dry, at night. I continue to take it for several days, and in a short while I am feeling fine. It is all the medicine I need."

Lesson for March 31

THE FUTURE LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6
GOLDEN TEXT—Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Here and Hereafter.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Ground of Hope for the Future.

1. The Resurrection of Jesus Christ (Luke 24:1-12).

The supreme test of Christianity is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It matters little what Jesus said and did while alive if His body remained in the grave. If He did not come forth in triumph from the tomb, then all His claims are false.

(1) The empty sepulcher (vv. 1, 3).

(2) The coming of the women (v. 1).

As an expression of affectionate regard for the Master, they came with spices for His body. If they had believed His words they would have known that His body could not be found in the sepulcher.

(2) What they found (vv. 2, 3). When they came to the sepulcher they found the stone had been rolled away, but they found not the body of Jesus. For them to have found His body in the sepulcher would have been the world's greatest tragedy. The empty tomb spoke most eloquently of the deity and power of the Son of God (Rom. 1:8).

2. The message of the men in shining garments (vv. 4-8).

(1) "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (v. 5).

This question, uttered by the angels, has been reverberating through the centuries.

(2) "He is not here but is risen" (v. 6).

Jesus had told them that the Lord must be betrayed and crucified and that on the third day He would rise again. Had they given heed to His words they would have been relieved of their perplexities.

3. The women witnessing to the eleven (vv. 9-11).

Their thrilling testimony concerning the empty tomb and the words of the angels appeared to the apostles as idle tales, and they refused to believe.

4. While investigating (v. 12). Peter the testimony of the women seemed as idle tales, Peter was not of the temperament to dismiss the matter from his mind, therefore he ran unto the sepulcher. Upon investigation he found the linen clothes lying in such a way as to prove the reality of the resurrection.

11. Jesus Preparing a Place in Heaven for His Own (John 14:1-3). These last words of Jesus were words of comfort. The hopes of the disciples were utterly shattered when Jesus told them about the cross. He consoled them by pointing to the reunion in the heavenly Father's house.

1. He asked them to trust in Him, even as God (v. 1).

Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how intense the grief or how great the sorrow.

2. He informed them that He was going to the Father's House in Heaven to prepare a home for them (v. 2).

He assured them that there was abundant room there for all. He said, there were many "abiding places." Heaven is an eternal dwelling place for God's children.

3. He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).

Jesus will not depend upon our wait for His own to come to Him but will come and call forth from the grave those who have died; transforming living believers, and take them all together to be forever with Himself in the heavenly home.

111. Jesus Christ Is the Way to the Heavenly Father (vv. 4-6).

Jesus informed the disciples that they knew the place to which He was going, and the way. To this Thomas interposed a doubt, in answer to which Christ asserted that He is:

1. The Way (v. 6).

Jesus Christ is more than a mere guide to God, or a teacher. He is the way itself.

2. The Truth (v. 6).

He is not merely the teacher, but the Truth incarnate. In His incarnation the spiritual and material worlds were united; therefore every line of truth, whether spiritual or material, converged in Him.

3. The Life (v. 6).

Christ is not merely the giver of life, but He is the very essence of life. Only those who receive Christ have life in the true sense.

Nabors, the present pastor of the church, attested her faithful Christian life. Beautiful papers were read by Mrs. S. S. Spencer and Mrs. Bohanan. Mrs. Florence Williams sang a beautiful solo, "Mother is Gone." The death of Mrs. Bostic, leaves behind to mourn their loss two sons and one daughter, Charlie T. James, and Mrs. Cletia, father, mother, two sisters and three brothers and a host of other relatives and friends.

"Her life's race well run
Her life's work well done
Her life's victory won
Now cometh rest."

The Human Side of Big Business

Walter P. Chrysler prescribes "Using your head for something besides buying a hat" as a fundamental basis for business success. Motor millionaire, believes hard work will help.

By EDGAR MELS.

Walter P. Chrysler was born 53 years ago in Ellis, Kansas. At 17 he became a sweeper in a roundhouse; then he became a mechanic's helper; then a full-fledged mechanic with the Santa Fe railroad at Wellington, Kansas.

At 34 he was made superintendent of motive power and machinery. Soon after he became general manager of the American Locomotive Works, at Allegheny, Pa. Two years later he became works manager of a great automobile plant. From that time on, his rise in the automotive world has been rapid and spectacular.

USE your head for something besides buying a hat," said

Walter P. Chrysler, at fifty-three head of the third largest motor corporation in the world. At 17, wiping grease from locomotives when they had finished their run, at five cents an hour—at 53, a multimillionaire, with his business and financial life just under full headway.

"There is no general rule for business success. There are many rules, all of them being vital in their way," continued Mr. Chrysler. "I was always enthusiastic about what I was doing. My mind was never occupied with wishing I was doing something else. I was never afraid of my job. The man who does not like his job might just as well quit it and get another. He will never get anywhere unless he does. Hard work does not hurt any one; five hours sleep and no worry are best."

"Whatever you do, do things. And get men to do things who will do things, not because they have to, but because they want to. Give them enough leeway to strengthen their confidence. I am a man who wants things done. Do something, even if you make a mistake occasionally. It is better to err than to sit by idly and twiddle your thumbs."

cago, is in the city visiting her father, Rev. J. M. Weathers, and other relatives and friends. She brought her two children with her as a souvenir for grandpa. They are jewels to him as are all grandchildren. No one knows the joy of grandchildren better than those who have them.

Rosenwald Celebration

An expression of appreciation is a becoming attitude for any one who is the recipient of a gift. As a group we have not always been mindful and grateful to those who have helped us along in life's rough way. Mr. Julius Rosenwald, a great philanthropist, not only is a well wisher of the needs of our people, but in a material way entered the trenches of the struggle and made it possible that the shadows of ignorance might be dissipated. The celebration March 28, throughout the state by our people, should show the measure of our gratitude to this benevolent man, for the establishment of the Rosenwald schools which do this southland of ours and which have been the means for the dissemination of knowledge to our race.

RED SWEENEY COUNTED ON BY KREWE

"Red" Sweeney early next week will sever his connections with high school athletics here and report to Manager "Pop" Kitchens at the Krewe's training camp at Tarpon Springs. He is the right handed pitcher the Tampa club obtained from the Orlando Colts following the break-up of the Florida State league last July.

"During baseball's off-season, Sweeney doubles as a high school athletic coach. It was in this capacity that he handled the Memorial junior high school football eleven last fall and then took charge of the Hillsborough senior high school basketball squad.

"Much of the credit for the Terriers' uphill climb in basketball belongs to Sweeney. When he first took charge of the team things went badly. The Terriers dropped game after game and finished far down in the West Coast league. Towards the last of the season Sweeney's combination began to function with more smoothness and when Hillsborough entered the district tourney at St. Petersburg, the team was clicking on all five cylinders.

"His quintet fought its way to the finals and then lost a hard fought game to the St. Pete high. However, both finalists are permitted to enter the annual state tournament at Gainesville. Sweeney will end his year's coaching assignment with the completion of this tournament Saturday night.

"Manager Kitchens is counting strongly upon Sweeney as a winning hurler for the Krewe this year. The redhead joined Tampa last year just when the club was in a slump and consequently his record of games won and lost does not rank very high. He pitched in 18 games, turning in five victories and five defeats.

"He showed a world of stuff on the ball and he had control, that necessary element that all winning pitchers must have. He ranked No. 6 among all the pitchers in the league in earned run averages with a percentage of 2.74.

"Sweeney, a former Mississippi college athlete, enjoyed a fine season in the Florida State league in 1927. He was sold to the Cincinnati Reds that fall but failed to make good in the majors and was turned back."

The above is taken from a recent issue of a Tampa, Fla. newspaper and will be read with interest.

I have found that if you'll say to yourself, 'I'll whip this job,' you'll do it."

Mr. Chrysler has lived up to his precepts, if such they be. At 17 he was earning five cents an hour as a cleaner in a roundhouse. Now he is a multimillionaire, every cent of which he has made himself. He is an individualist, who believes in personal initiative. His son and namesake was permitted to pick his own college—he will be allowed to choose his own career.

"The young man just starting out on a career should make sure where he wants to go," said Mr. Chrysler, "and what he wants to do and then work for all there is in him. The young man should not be afraid to throw up a job, provided a better one is in view."

This is what Mr. Chrysler did when he found that he had done a job—his first—in reorganizing a well-known motor corporation, bringing it from ruin to success.

He was getting $13,000 a year. Another motor manufacturer asked him if he wanted to work for him and how much he wanted. Chrysler replied in the affirmative and that he expected $1,000 a month.

"Can't pay it," replied the prospective employer. "We are passing through a crisis in our business affairs."

est by many friends of Sweeney here who will be glad to know of his progress in professional baseball.

W. P. Chrysler

"How much can you pay?" asked Chrysler.

"Six thousand," replied the manufacturer and Chrysler went to work at a salary cut in half—because he felt that he could do better in the long run. Having saved three motor corporations and one tire concern from what appeared inevitable bankruptcy through his financial genius, Chrysler started in business for himself. In four brief years the car bearing his name has jumped into third place, so far as sales are concerned. The idea of making a car, low in balance, with quick acceleration, ability to turn on its own axle, with four-wheeled brakes came to Chrysler while he was watching a traffic jam, most of the cars being of the long wheelbase type.

"Give the boss more than he expects in the way of thought and work and enthusiasm," concluded Chrysler. "I have always done that. When I am at my factory, I punch the time clock as does every one else—and I often punch in as early as seven in the morning—rarely later than eight. I have always given the best there is in me—always a bit more than was expected. Perhaps that is why I have succeeded to a certain extent."

GRENADA WINS OPENER

In the opening game of the baseball season the Grenada High School Bulldogs defeated the Water Valley High School team by a score of 16-3. A slippery diamond hindered the fielding of both teams. The Bulldogs won by a vicious batting assault on the offerings of Redwine, Water Valley pitcher, Koonce, Grenada twirler, was in great form, holding Water Valley to three scattered hits. Williams and Perkins, with four hits each, and Abel with a home run and two doubles, led in batting. The first ball was pitched by May-Doty and batted by Chief of Police Crenshaw. Pearson, former Texas league pitcher, umpired a fine game.

HEALTH OFFICER ADVISES AS TO HEALTH REGULATIONS

To the People of Grenada:

The advent of spring with hot weather and the presence of rabies or hydrophobia in many nearby places, makes it necessary to call your attention to the running at large of unmuzzled dogs and the presence of hogs in the business and residential areas of the city. These things are in violation of the law, and the keeping and maintaining of hogs near any hotel, restaurant, cafe, lunch counter, boarding house or any place where food is served to the public is in especial violation of the regulations of our State Board of Health. The health of our people and the best interests of the community absolutely demand the vanishment or removal of hogs from the residential sections.

After April 1st any person not complying with these regulations will be subject to prosecution and the city marshal will be so instructed. For the past year our health record and especially for typhoid fever is among the very best of any county in the state and I earnestly call upon every citizen to help me to maintain the same high standard for the coming year.

Respectfully,

T. J. BROWN,
City Health Officer.
Grenada, Miss., March 27, 1929.
